

NO MILL ROAD TESCO

Campaign Update

July 2008

Here we go again!

31st July East Area Committee to decide on another application from Tesco

On Thursday 6th March, Tesco received their first major knock in their attempts to open a shop on Mill Road. You turned out in your hundreds to St Philips Church, to watch the East Area Committee Councillors vote unanimously against Tesco extending the old Wilco shop to make it a viable space for them to trade in.

That application has now gone to appeal, and many of you have submitted your reasons for objection to the planning inspector.

Now, those of us who oppose Tesco opening on Mill Road face another challenge. Tesco have submitted another application to Cambridge City Council – this time for an air conditioning and refrigeration unit.

The No Mill Road Tesco campaign still believe it is unlikely Tesco will open without the extension. However, it would be IMPOSSIBLE for them to open without this refrigeration unit. So, we are asking for your help again.

The City Council's planning department have again recommended approval of Tesco's application. It is important we show our councillors NOW what the strength of feeling is among local residents.

The date for you to formally object to Tesco's new application has now passed. However, as with last time, we still recommend you write to your local councillors and let them know how you feel.

The councillors email addresses, and our full response to the planning officers report, can be found on our website, www.nomillroadtesco.org.

Above all else, we ask that you attend the East Area Committee meeting at St Philips Church THIS THURSDAY, July 31st, 7.30pm, to make your voice heard again.

What you can do:

- Contact your local councillor - log on to www.nomillroadtesco.org for how to do this
- Display the poster on the back page in your window
- Come along to the East Area Committee Meeting on Thursday, 31st July, 7.30pm at St Philips Church, Mill Road - and tell all your friends!
